About the course

Incident and accident investigation training is vital in helping any business deal with unexpected events in order to reduce their consequences. An effective investigation requires methodical, structured approach to information gathering, collation and analysis.

The NEBOSH HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation course has been developed jointly between NEBOSH and the HSE. The course teaches learners how non-complex incidents can be investigated effectively as well as provide good incident investigation techniques.

By applying the knowledge and skills gained from this qualification, learners will be able to contribute to maintaining a safe and healthy workplace.

Course syllabus

Upon successful completion of this course, learners should be able to:

- Understand why incident investigations are carried out and how human and organisational factors contribute to incidents
- Understand how to investigate incidents and confidently carry out an investigation.

Assessment

Learners will undertake a practical assessment, this is completed at the end of the course. Learners will be provided with a pack of evidence including three witness interview videos. Learners will be asked to review the evidence, evaluate each interview and produce an action plan that will help prevent a recurrence of an incident.
